Signing session in Oosaka

I've had other sign sessions before but this time, the session was being held in my native town, Oosaka! Wheee

I was in a great mood for sightseeing. I took a lot of pictures of things like Glico (1) or the Kuidaore dolls (2).

The place of the session was the Junku-dou's Namba branch store and its manager (who took very good care of us) was Mr Yoshimoto from last time!
By the way, the kansai dialect (3) is so cute---!!

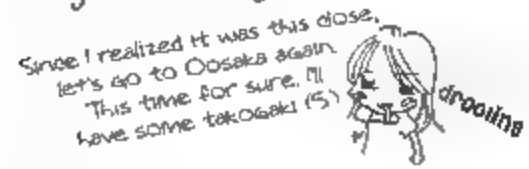
I don't have an accent so I feel a bit envious.

We received a lot of fan letters at Oosaka! Inside them were gifts like straps or accessories. Really, thank you for all these. I had a bit of taste of what it is to be popular

Later I found out that the place I currently live in was connected to Oosaka only by one train... I was like, "oh, it's so close, actually!". I found out on the way home.

Also, there were fans who come from the prefecture of Mie. (4)
Thank you!

There were also people who couldn't come due to school and such and had their younger sisters come in their place. Even though you were all busy or came from far away, thank you for coming~~~~



Translator's Notes:

(1): Glico is a famous brand of snacks from the Kansai, the region including Oosaka. It's both tasty and good for the health advertising its nutriment. And yeah, they're the ones who make the famous Pocky.

2): Kuidaore dolls, another representative figure from the Oosaka culture. A restaurant called Kui-daore installed a big mechanical puppet playing drums, in front of their store as a mascot,it got very famous. http://www.flickr.com/photos/kawaii_kinki/882361?/in/set-48305/

3): Kansai dialect: many dialects still remain in Japan. Of them all, the dialect from the Kansai region is the best known. All dialects are quite distinctive from the "standard Japanese"

(4: the prefecture of Mie: or so to say, it's a different region than Osaka, but still a neighboring one. http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mie_Prefecture

(5): kind of food, most likely another specialty of the Kansai region. It seems to be merely another way of saying "takoyaki" for takoyaki, see http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Takoyaki.
